

Hello. My name is Martin and I'm from Slovakia. And I was happy in Ankara with no limits. Everything changed, when my teacher of English told me:

„Martin, you will fly to Turkey.“

I was a bit scared, but I said OK. I love travelling, know new people, places and I love to know new culture.. I was impressed about everything. That was my first flight. But the biggest fun started when we arrived in Turkey. When we arrived, I stayed at a really beautiful and luxurious hotel in a room with Michal. The next day, we met Turkish people and I was really surprised. ALL girls were really beautiful, All the boys were friendly and kind. They came to us and started to talk. Nobody told them “ Go and talk!“ I think that was their initiative. And boys joined us to their group really quickly.

That was really kind for me. Boys began to call me Gardeş and girls Kanka. I was impressed, how friendly they were. I have never seen more friendly people. This group made me feel like I was at home in Turkey. We went on the trips together- boys, girls, Slovak, Greeks, Turkish, students, teachers We could talk together with no limits. The most interesting trip was to Atatürk's mausoleum. I'm so happy that Atatürk existed, because thanks to him, I was in Turkey. I'm so happy and that was my best experience with using English language. This trip motivated me to study English. Thanks everybody for this awesome stay. Mato

The stay in Ankara was my first visit to Turkey. I think that this trip was amazing and we learned a lot about this interesting city. We met great people, visited amazing places and tasted Turkish food. I have made a lot of new friends. People in Ankara are very kind and friendly. The city was a little busy but had its own atmosphere which I liked. I also liked museum of Anatolian civilisations, Anitkabir and theAnkara castle. I was not hungry because Turkish food is very tasty , although a bit spicy. I liked the program very much and we had a great time while we were treasure hunting or when we were preparing the cookbook. All of these things made the time in Turkey unforgettable and exciting for me and I hope I will come back sometimes. Andrej

Before the stay in Turkey I didn't know what I had to expect from that stay but already on the first day iat school I knew that it would be an amazing week. In only one week I met a lot of wonderful, nice and beautiful people and I learned many things about Turkey. Every single day was really good one. I liked hugging greetings, it made me feel like I was more connected with the person. I got many friends, with whom we stay in contact via the social media and

I can't wait when we will meet each other again. I found out that Turkish people are really kind and it doesn't matter how old they are. In Ankara I saw many beautiful sights, especially Anitkabir impressed me. I think that Turkey has very interesting history, good tea and coffee. In the end I just want to say that I really enjoyed that week and I was sad when we had to go back to Slovakia. Michal

Turkey is a beautiful country. People there are very kind, friendly and hospitable. I visited Turkey for the first time and I'm very happy for this experience.

It was very pleasant to stay at the hotel with Greek students, we created new friendships and became very good friends.

We visited many beautiful places and I would like to see more because I know there are many places worth visiting. Turkish students were always there for us, At anytime we needed help or we wanted to ask something they were ready for that. I'm thankful to Turkish teachers for organizing our schedule.

My thanks also belong to my teachers who selected me to come to Turkey and to Greek and Turkish students who became my very good friends.

I will never forget them and I hope we will keep in touch. Daniel

I recently was in Turkey. We were there because our school is involved in an amazing program – Erasmus+. We visited the capital city and we met a lot of great people. Ankara is a beautiful city in my opinion. There are interesting buildings, nice places but especially there are living kind people. People living in Ankara are very special and different, but they are friendly, communicative, willing and they still smile. I was very thrilled with Turkish food that is very spicy but very tasty. Turkish sweets are tasty too and better than in Slovakia. Turkey's best thing was black tea that we drank every day. Everything was amazing and I am missing it very much. I found there a lot of new friendships and we have experienced many things. I am so happy that I could be there. I would like to come back and meet those amazing people again.
